(XLVIth YEAR.) THE (No. 2284.)

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1790.

BERLIN, August 7.

IT is confirmed that a ſtrong Pruſſian army is marching againſt the Ruſſians, in order to operate for making peace with the Turks. The reigning duke of Brunſwick has the chief command, and his brother Frederick a corps under his orders.

PARIS, Auguſt 10.

A ſociety of Printers, of this city, lately aſſembled in the Hall of the Cordeliers, to celebrate a funeral fete to the memory of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.—On a column in the middle of the Hall was placed the buſt of that great man, bearing a civic crown. Underneath appeared a printing preſs, and other implements of the art he ſo much honoured and cultivated. While an apprentice was pronouncing the eulogy of Franklin, the compoſitors and others were occupied in printing and diſtributing copies of it to a numerous body of citizens, who honoured this intereſting ceremony with their preſence.

Among the tombs placed in the church of Neuſchatel, there is one that preſents a ſingularity quite of the ariſtocratic kind. A nobleman of the Chateler family had a nich ſcooped out of one of the pillars of the aiſle, and there ordered a clauſe in his will, that he ſhould be interred upright—aſſigning as a reaſon, that he did not chooſe plebeians ſhould walk over his body.

PLYMOUTH, Auguſt 3.

Laſt night arrived the Betſey, of Jerſey, Francis Jerneaux, maſter, from l'Orient, with cotton, hides, &c. for Liverpool, who brings an account of 35 ſail of the line lying in Breſt harbour, completely ready for ſea, and that three more are to join them from l'Orient. Sailors are repairing to the fleet in droves, wearing the national cockade in their hats, and a large boarding-pike, by way of ſtaff, in their hands. There is no period fixed for their ſailing, nor is their deſtination known.

Aug. 7. The Leopard, of 50 guns, captain Blanker, and Thames frigate of 32 guns, captain Troubridge, ſailed yeſterday morning, but are ſtill in the offing, for Nootka Sound. They are victualled for eight months, and have a great quantity of ſtores on board.

LIVERPOOL, Auguſt 12.

A ſeaman, a few days ſince, fell over the ſide of the Alligator frigate at Sheerneſs:—Captain Coffin, the commander, beheld, from the man's ſituation, that he muſt periſh if not inſtantly relieved; and, we muſt add, to the honour of this officer, that he did not pauſe a moment, but leaped from the quarter deck, with his boots on, and reſcued the poor fellow from being drowned,—at the imminent riſk of his own life!

Well may a ſailor boldly dare,
And ardent follow martial ſtrife;
For when with death himſelf at war,
He in a COFFIN meets with life.

LONDON, Auguſt 12.

An American gentleman arrived in London yeſterday from the Cape of Good Hope, where he ſuffered ſhipwreck by the gale of the twelfth of April, when ſeven out of ſeventeen ſail were drove on ſhore. Among thoſe that remained afloat was his majeſty's ſhip the Guardian. The violence of the ſea was ſuch that the writer ſaw the Guardian lift many times, till her fore foot cleared the water full fourteen feet along the keel, when he could not but admire to ſee her ſituation below; her fore ground gripe, and her keel, for eight or ten feet, were entirely cut off, and ſo evident that it was aſtoniſhing ſhe was kept afloat; and ſtill more ſo, that the management of her was preſerved ſo as to bring her into port. Captain Riou's conduct in the admiration of every ſtranger; his earneſt ſolicitude to act with propriety in ſuch a complication of unfortunate events, merits a grateful return from his country. His magnanimity and ſerenity are unequalled. The writer was alſo on board the Guardian a few days before he left the Cape, where he had the pleaſure to ſee in good health the young gentlemen who remained on board with captain Riou, particularly one, whom he was informed is related to the Britiſh miniſter, young Mr. Gore, ſon of captain Gore, of the navy; and young Mr. Pothill, Mr. Frier, late maſter of the bounty, and a young gentleman called Tinckler, from that ſhip, were alſo, when the writer left the Cape, on board the Guardian.

Extract of a letter from Dublin, Auguſt 3.

"Saturday laſt two more Weſt-Indiamen arrived here, one from Jamaica, the other from Antigua, with rum and ſugar.

"On Friday evening, twenty-ſeven poor haymakers attending at the Pidgeon houſe, in order to be put on board a ſhip for England, were ſeized by a preſs-gang, and put on board a tender—the commander of the gang telling them at the ſame time, that if they were able to mow hay, they could have no objections to mow the enemies of their country, and they ſhould have paſſage, diet, &c. gratis."

In the engagement on the 4th of July, the Galere le Seraphin, with the king of Sweden aboard, was burnt to the waters edge, his majeſty was on the point of periſhing, but he got on board the frigate l'Amphion and this alſo was ſo diſabled, and ſo near ſinking, that he was again forced to change his poſition, and go on board a chaloupe.

Aug. 13. A ſea-faring gentleman of Leith, has lately invented a kind of falſe keels, by means of which, a flat-bottomed ſhip or boat has every advantage poſſeſſed by one of a deep and ſharp form, when ſailing to windward, and at the ſame time meets with no additional inconvenience when in ſhoal water; as theſe keels, which conſiſt of two pieces of plate-iron hung on hinges at the bottom of the main-keel, may be lifted up at pleaſure, in ſuch a manner as to produce no more effect than if they were not there; and it gives us great pleaſure to inform the public, that this invention has, on trial, exceeded the moſt ſanguine expectations entertained of it.

General Clark is to go out to Canada in the room of lord Dorcheſter, who wiſhes to come home.

Aug. 14. The marching of the Auſtrians through France—the 20,000 Sardinian troops now hovering on the confines of that kingdom—the fears of the national aſſembly, and their inconſiderate conduct in permitting the troops of their queen's brother to enter their territories—the arming of the Spaniards—the perilous ſtate of the Netherlands—all preſent ſuch a criſis as fills the mind with awe, and leaves room for the boldeſt ſpeculations with reſpect to its conſequences!

A man was buried out of Shoe-lane laſt Thurſday, whoſe character was very extraordinary. He had always made it a practice to hire ſome upper room in houſes of obſcure ſituation, where he lived on bread and cheeſe, onions, and now and then a ſalt herring. He was never known to have acquaintance or friendſhip with any man, and although he died worth upwards of 8000l. was never known to do a good action therewith. It is diſcovered that he kept a ſtrong rope conſtantly faſtened to his bedſtead, that he might lower himſelf down into the ſtreet, in caſe of the under part of the building taking fire. A blind fiddler in the Strand falls heir to the ſtrong box, out of which, in his life-time, this watchful dragon had never been known to allow himſelf a comfortable exiſtence. He was buried privately in Moor-fields by ſix beggars.

Monſieur Volney, ſpeaking of impriſonment for debt, obſerves, that "this is a refinement in cruelty with which even the Turks are unacquainted. There the debtor is obliged indeed to give up all his property to the laſt farthing, but here his mortification ends: he is not cooped up in an iron cage, as with us, merely for being unfortunate." There ſeems to want a reform in this particular through all the nations of Chriſtendom—but it muſt originate with thoſe who have power, character and influence, in the world, and cannot be expected to be brought about merely by a few ſpeculative philoſophers, over the midnight lamp. Such may indeed point out the way of reforming abuſes, but it muſt be men of the world to carry their plans into execution. It is indeed ſurpriſing how thoſe whom we call great men, who are wallowing in riches and affluence, can paſs daily by theſe abodes of ſorrow in their ſplendid equipages, without once taking into conſideration the miſeries of their fellow-creatures, the victims of ſavage barbarity, who, in theſe diſmal retreats, at a diſtance from their families and friends, are ſuffering the conſequences of a mean and pitiful reſentment.

Vander Noot is ſaid to have fled to Holland, but not without ſomething that was worth the troubles of carriage, and the loſs of which "has done the congreſs no ſervice." Vander Merich is ſaid to be at liberty, at the head of 18,000 men.

To involve their country in a war, was the only expedient which the Spaniſh miniſters could adopt, to check the fermenting ardour of freedom which daily ſpreads in that country. In the frontiers of Spain, particularly in Biſcay, Catalonia and Arragon, the people are ripe for throwing off the yoke of tyranny; and all the efforts to prevent them only ſtimulate their energies towards its completion.

Before the fleet of Spain can meet that of England, it is highly probable that the flames of civil war will be laying waſte the territories of the former kingdom.

Vienna, beſides the approaching bleſſings of peace, will ſhortly be the ſcene of much ſplendour; beſides the preſence of the reigning family, their Sicilian majeſties are expected on a viſit on the intended intermarriages.

A new dafhing game was introduced the other evening at Brighthelmſtone, with no inconſiderable eclat. After a pretty free circulation of the bottle at a feſtival board, a pool of fifty guineas each was propoſed to be waded for in the ſea, immediately over the Steine, with their cloaths on; who adventured farheſt was to be declared the winner. This novel diverſion being announced, drew together, as may be ſuppoſed, an immenſe concourſe of ſpectators. Five are ſaid to have entered the lifts; but, on approaching the beach, three, of the Hibernian ſtyle, parted off; the conteſt, therefore, lay between a royal duke and the earl of Barrymore; when, after a hard ſtruggle, it appeared, that the noble earl poſſeſſed the art of holding his head above water longer than his princely competitor: Victory, therefore, declared in his favour,—and his lordſhip was received on ſhore with all the honours due to ſuch a heroic atchievement.

Aug. 19. There was a ſtrong report yeſterday, at the weſt end of the town, of an unavoidable rupture between this country and France, who are ſaid to have it ſeriouſly in meditation to adhere to the terms of the family-compact, and ſupport Spain in her preſent diſpute with this country.

Extract of a letter from Peterſburgh, July 16.

"It is ſaid that our cabinet have lowered the conditions upon which they will agree to a general pacification: They no longer inſiſt upon leſſening the regal preponderance in Sweden, nor do they require that the prince to rule over the provinces of Moldavia, Wallachia and Beſſarabia, ſhall be appointed by Ruſſia.

"The following preliminary points are propoſed to the Porte:

"1ſt. A clear and conciſe renewal of the old treaties and agreements entered into between the two powers, ſince the peace of Kamardgi, and the laſt breach of peace, and fixing a new limit of territory between the two crowns, the boundaries of which to be the Dnieſter, and Akierman to be ceded to Ruſſia.

"2d. The provinces of Moldavia, Wallachia and Beſſarabia, to be declared free principalities, independent of both powers; by which means thoſe countries will form ſuch boundaries, both to Ruſſia and Turkey, as will prevent any future miſunderſtanding.

"3d. The acceptance of the above two articles facilitates the propoſal of another for the eſtabliſhment of a permanent and laſting peace.

"With reſpect to Sweden, the empreſs only requires the renewal of the old treaties of Nenſtadt and Abo, promiſing to forget all that had paſſed."

It is expected that the king of Hungary will immediately proceed to Frankfort, to be elected emperor, now he has got the load of foreign war off his ſhoulders. It is alſo underſtood, his majeſty deſigns to ſet out for the Low Countries, for the humane purpoſe of endeavouring to conciliate, by his preſence, his revolted ſubjects, rather than expoſe them to the further ravages of war.

ARTICLES of CONVENTION between PRUSSIA and AUSTRIA, ſigned at Reichenbach, in Sileſia, on the evening of the 27th of July.

Article 1. Auſtria renounces its alliances with Ruſſia.

Art. 2. Auſtria concludes a ſeparate peace with the Turks, and renounces all its conqueſts made during the war.—It ſhall, however, retain its ancient provinces of Gallicia and Ludemeria.

Art. 3. Should Auſtria be enabled to procure, by means of a friendly negotiation with the Turks, any exchange of territory, Pruſſia ſhall obtain from the court of Vienna, in order to preſerve the balance of power, as many ſquare miles of land belonging to the Auſtrian poſſeſſors in Upper Sileſia, as Auſtria ſhall obtain from the Turks on the ſide of the Aluta.

Art. 4. The king of Pruſſia engages to give king Leopold his vote, at the approaching election, for the Imperial throne, but under this expreſs condition (ſine qua non) that the emperor of the Romans ſhall never enter into alliance with Ruſſia, in order that he may be enabled, as chief of the Germanic empire, to reſiſt any attack which Ruſſia might, at a future period, be induced to undertake againſt it.

Art. 5. Auſtria ſhall have full liberty to enforce obedience from its revolted ſubjects in the Netherlands, under condition that the king of Hungary reſtores to them all the privileges they enjoyed under the government of Maria Thereſa. (This article is guaranteed by all the mediating powers.)

Art. 6. The king of Pruſſia does not expect any compenſation for the expences of his warlike preparations, nor does he enforce his claim to the territory of Thorn and Dantzick.

Art. 7. Should Ruſſia perſiſt in carrying on the war againſt the Porte and Sweden, and the latter powers demand aſſiſtance of Pruſſia, according to the ſubſiſting treaties, his Pruſſian majeſty ſhall have full liberty to accede to their demands, and the court of Vienna ſhall not interfere in the diſpute.

Unhappy Effects of Novel Reading.

A young lady near Cheſter, not long ſince married to a gentleman of conſiderable fortune and private worth, but rather advanced in years, was obſerved for ſome weeks paſt in a very gloomy and perturbed ſtate of mind; every effort was uſed to diſcover the cauſe, and every means was alſo tried to remove the effect, yet all to no purpoſe.

A few days ago, however, ſhe appeared to recover her uſual ſpirits, and her friends fondly imagined they had accompliſhed their wiſhes; but on Sunday laſt night, after breakfaſting with her family, ſhe retired to her bed-chamber, and deſired the maid to call her at twelve o'clock; as her head ached, she would lie on the bed.

The servant left her on the bed, and departed; in a short time the house was alarmed with the report of a pistol; the servants ran up stairs, found the bed-chamber door bolted, which they forced open, and there saw their mistress in the last agonies of death; the pistol still in one hand, and an old novel, called "Content, or the Happy Choice," in the other, a leaf of which was turned down, enclosing the picture of a gentleman in her father's neighbourhood, formerly an admirer.

KINGSTON, August 28.

The Alexander, captain Miller, which arrived here last week, fell in with a large sloop under Dutch colours, on the morning of the 30th of July, in lat. 13, 11. long. 31, W. who after hailing the Alexander, asked the usual questions of latitude, longitude, destination, &c. Being answered, he was asked what he wanted? His only reply was, "back your fore-top-sail and come under my stern, or I'll fire into you." Captain Miller not choosing to obey him, he immediately hauled his wind and fired several shot, which fortunately did no harm, though many of them passed over the ship. Captain Miller having no guns, and only twelve men, was under the mortifying necessity of continuing his course, and in a short time was a considerable distance a head of the sloop, who finding she had no chance at a chace, hauled her wind and stood to the southward. She appeared to be about 100 or 120 tuns burthen, with black sides and a white bottom, very full of men, amongst whom several blacks could be distinguished; said they were bound to the Cape de Verds. She was, however, suspected to be one of the American pirates, which the Fairy sloop of war was sent in pursuit of by commodore Inglefield, on his arrival at St. Jago, in October last, they having attacked and plundered the Mr. Braithwaites, who were sent out by the court of directors, to attempt the recovery of the dollars, lost in the Hartwell Indiaman, at Bona Vista, some time ago.

BOSTON, October 1.

Intelligence relative to WAR.

An English paper, of August 16, mentions, that the press among the seafaring people was as great as since the first notion of war.

Spanish Intelligence.

Capt. Skinner, who arrived here on Saturday last, in 40 days from Cadiz, informs, that the Spanish fleet, consisting of 26 line of battle ships, sailed the 20th of July: That, at the time of his sailing, August 22, there were ten more ships of the line, besides frigates, at anchor in Cadiz bay; and that the most unremitted exertions were making to fit and man others.

Captain Skinner likewise informs, that, two days before he left Cadiz, a ship of the line and three frigates, with troops, sailed to reinforce the garrison at Ceuta, the Moors having laid siege to it.

SALEM, October 5.

Captain Roche, late from Trinidada, informs, that the Spaniards are fortifying that island with great industry, and also their possessions on the main.

WHITEHAVEN, July 7.

A very remarkable and happy instance of resuscitation occurred at Maryport a few days ago. The subject was a boy between eight and nine years of age, (son of captain Anthony Harris) who had been in the water a quarter of an hour, before the discovery was providentially made by a servant maid belonging to Mr. Barns, of the Ropery; there being none but children near him at the time of his sinking. After being taken out, a person was carrying the body, apparently dead, on his back, towards the house of the father, when he was fortunately met by Mr. Christopherson, surgeon of that place, who instantly breathing very forcibly into the mouth, occasioned a plentiful discharge of water. The body was then taken into the nearest house and Mr. Christopherson (assistance being speedily procured) proceeded in the rules laid down by the humane society, which he persevered in, notwithstanding every discouraging appearance, till his labours were successfully completed.

NEW-YORK, October 11.

The commissioners of New-York and Vermont have amicably adjusted the important business of their mission; the result is, that Vermont is dismembered from the state of New-York, and the New-Hampshire Grants, so called, are acknowledged to be valid. Thus the way is open for the admission of Vermont into the federal union. (United States Gazette.)

A farmer in a neighbouring state, of a philosophical turn and fond of silence and quiet, being perpetually disturbed with the monotonous music of the dasher of his butter churn in the dairy room, has, after long study, discovered that the operation of churning is incredibly accelerated by pouring a small quantity of distilled vinegar into the churn. It has since been repeatedly made use of for this purpose, and always attended with the same success.

PHILADELPHIA, September 29.

The French artists, resident in Rome, says a letter from that city, dated July 14, having insisted on wearing the national cockade, orders were given to force them to take it from their hats, which occasioned a conflict, in which many lives were lost. A young woman of extreme beauty, wife to one of the Frenchmen who fell in the fray, with dishevelled hair and distracted looks, ran through the city, exclaiming, murder!—assassins!—to arms!—to arms!—The signal operated like a charm; the people armed themselves, and, adopting the French cockade, forcibly brought the pontiff from Frescati to the capital, where they addressed him in very free terms, and afterwards having extorted from him a promise to grant all their demands, they left his holiness, and spent the remainder of the day and night in demonstrating their joy by carousals, illuminations, &c.

Oct. 12. Captain M'Iver, of the brig Mary, from Kingston, Jamaica, arrived here, informs, that on Wednesday the 1st September at Kingston, a gale of wind came from E. N. E. to S. E. at 7 o'clock in the morning, and continued with considerable violence until about half past 1 o'clock; during which, one ship, the London, and two brigs, the Fame and Dispatch, with four sail of sloops and schooners, were driven ashore, but most of them got off soon after. At Martha Brae, a ship was drove ashore, and at Savanna la Mar, two ships and one drogher, Hardy, commander, from Port-Morant, with all hands, except one negro, were lost. Several French vessels which had put to sea shortly before the gale, suffered much, and were obliged to put back, and one French schooner foundered, and all hands lost. No damage done to the town of Kingston, but the plantain walks and some of the coffee plantations suffered considerably.

Extract of a letter from Kingston, dated September 2.

"Yesterday we had a very severe gale of wind, from the N. E. and a great deal of mischief has been done to the shipping in the harbour,——and as the plantain-trees must have suffered, I think there is a prospect of captain ——, returning to a favourable market."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Liguanea, (Jamaica) to another in this city, dated September 8.

"Not having the pleasure of seeing you immediately on departure, induces me to embrace the earliest opportunity of dropping these few lines to acquaint you, that we are still in the land of the living, after being threatened with a violent hurricane on the 1st instant. It continued to blow for twelve hours, varying from different points, with great force, and did considerable damage to the country in general, the particulars of which you will have in due time, when the same is properly authenticated and ascertained."

Extract of a letter from Port-au-Prince, to a person in this city, dated September 24, 1790.

"This, in fact, is the land of confusion: the people are dividing against each other, and have been at loggerheads. The loyal party have the advantage, and are daily imprisoning some of the citizens. I fear the fire is only smothered, to break out with fresh fury. Lettres de cachette and files of musqueteers are daily parading the streets: Business is almost at a stand: The harbour is crouded with American vessels, which have been waiting here, some two months, others longer, and cannot procure loading."

Extract of a letter from Lexington (Kentucky) dated September 9.

"I retire a short time from the bustle of a campaign's preparation, to address a few lines to you, expressive of a wish that this may meet you in health and good spirits, the latter of which is at present particularly my portion, from the pleasure I promise myself in attending the troops in their expedition over the Ohio for sixty days. We start to-morrow from this town, with high hopes and small apprehensions.

"One thousand men march from this district, which added to the Pennsylvanians and regulars, we suppose will amount to near two thousand men. What is to stand against this force, well appointed as it will be? Cannon are to be taken along also.

"The devastations and murders of the Indians upon our frontiers, in every direction, ought not any longer to be submitted to.—But how inconsistent are mankind,—what insolent and abusive reflections have not, till lately, been made against congress, for their supposed neglect of us? and now that they have directed offensive operations, the greatest, general, and most positive backwardness has been shewn by the country.—I do myself the honour of a voluntary tender of my services."

The national assembly of France have passed a decree, to have a monument erected, with the stones of the Bastile, to the memory of doctor Franklin.

Oct. 13. The decree of the 19th of June, obliged the French nobility to strip themselves of their titles, and efface their arms, and to return to the rank of citizens. A nobleman enveloped the arms on the pannals of his carriage in a cloud, and wrote under it, It will only pass over: The commissaries of the district of Bonne Nouvelle, went with the national guard to his house, when a painter whom they had taken with them effaced the whole, and in the place of the motto, wrote—It has passed over.

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, dated August 28.

"The emperor of Morocco is collecting ammunition and stores with an intention to besiege Ceuta, a fortress of the Spaniards in his dominions in our neighbourhood. His repeated insults to the Spaniards plainly shew he will soon break with them. The prime minister, or effendi of his father, a great friend to the Spaniards, and a professed enemy of the English, he lately caused to be beheaded, his head to be fixed on the front of the Spanish consul's house at Tanglers, one of his hands on the house of the Spanish Friery, and another on the gate of the town, all the differences he had with his father in his life time he imputes to the intrigues of the Spaniards. By the latest accounts from the Levant, the Russians and Imperialists carry every thing before them, and notwithstanding the diversion in the Baltic, they are likely to carry their point. They are now within a very few days march of Constantinople."

Extract of a letter from Sunbury (Georgia) dated September 20.

"A firm peace being now, to all appearance, restored between the United States and the Creek Indians, we may reasonably expect that the state of Georgia will soon begin to feel the good effects. The immediate beneficial consequences are already at this moment taking place. The vast tracts of fertile land on both sides of the Altamahaw river are rapidly filling up, and nothing is wanting here (to compensate for the scarcity of slaves) but a hardy, industrious race of men, who instead of being mere lookers on, in quality of overseers and drivers, would condescend to put their own hands to the axe or grubbing-hoe, and make this extensive territory one of the most desirable in the habitable world. The country round Sapola Sound and the mouth of the Altamahaw, is one of the most beautiful you can imagine, abounding with every thing that can make life comfortable, besides an excellent navigation and easy bar at the north end of Sapola, with rather more water than that of Charleston. Several vessels are hourly looked for from France (one in particular of eight hundred tuns from Bourdeaux) to load with live oak ship-timber and spars, in the river St. Mary's."

Charles county, October 29, 1790.

Anne-Arundel county, October 16, 1790.

Curſed be he that remoueth his neighbour's land-mark, and all the people ſhall ſay, AMEN.——Deuteronomy, ch. 28, ver. 18.

SOME time in the year 1779, or 1780, I commenced a ſuit of treſpaſs and ejectment, in the general court of the weſtern ſhore, againſt a certain James Howard, ſon of Henry, of Anne-Arundel county, whoſe land adjoined to mine.—The ſaid Howard pretended to claim part of my land, but the deed he claimed under, wherein the beginning was deſcribed to be at a certain heap of ſtones, made by his ſaid father Henry; on running the lines of my land, in the year 1750, or thereabouts, the ſaid James died before the ſuit was ended, after his death it went off the docket. I have very lately diſcovered that the aforeſaid deed, by which the ſaid Howard claimed part of my land, has been eraſed, and the beginning altered from the aforeſaid heap of ſtones to a red oak tree within my lines, from the ſaid heap of ſtones about 75 or 80 yards. If he the ſaid James could have eſtabliſhed his boundary at ſaid red oak, he would have taken the water of my land, ſecured him from the treſpaſs, taken away my improved meadow, thrown my lines to the ſouth-weſt into a worn out old field, not worth one ſhilling per acre, and made me a treſpaſſer, for which he had a ſuit againſt me at the ſame time. I have alſo examined the records of the county wherein his deed was recorded, and find that the ſaid record is alſo eraſed, and the beginning made at the ſaid red oak inſtead of the aforeſaid heap of ſtones—Part of the letter S, on the county records, is ſtill perceivable——NOTICE is hereby given, that I intend to petition the general aſſembly of Maryland, at their next meeting, to paſs a law to amend the ſaid records and deed agreeable to the original grant to the ſaid James.
